

FACILITATOR PROFILE

Michelle Etheve

With a Masters of Science in Coaching Psychology, Michelle specialises in enabling people to create purposeful, strengths-based change and to thrive as they create, learn and experiment together. As co-founder of The Change Lab, she helps to create cultures of curiosity by teaching people how to design and ask better questions.

Michelle has designed and delivered Appreciative Inquiry summits, positive change experiences, certificate programs, wellbeing programs, and coaching development programmes in organizations (small and large), schools, universities, communities, government departments, associations, and not for profits around the world. She brings her special brand of playful energy, humour, and compassion to every session she facilitates and consistently helps people leave each workshop with a greater sense of purpose, clarity, commitment, strength, and understanding of both the complexities and simplicities of bringing out the best in others, and thriving and creating positive change together.

Michelle has worked with clients such as: Xero, City of Maroondah, Knowledge and Human Development Authority Dubai, CareSuper, Wise Group, Minter Ellison, Family Safety Victoria, University of Melbourne, and Methodist Ladies College.

Michelle has an energy and zest for life and business that makes you want to do better and be better. Michelle has an incredible ability to ask questions that take you to new places and new ways of thinking
